Pat,

We've updated the Road Exhibit to show the requested information. See below for my responses in red.

The exhibit shows the Wilco LRTP corridor in gray and the proposed paths in red and orange. Both proposed paths meet the 45 mph design requirements; see the exhibit for dimensions.

A couple of items to consider:

- Existing median break on Hwy 79.
- Existing pipeline easements at the southeast corner of our site.
- Existing structures north of Hwy 79.

It's difficult to identify a preferred path as the LRTP corridor continues north of our site.

Best,

Johnnie Garza

Johnnie,

Thank you for providing the exhibit. Please add these items and resubmit:

1. The current arterial alignment as shown on the LRTP with 136' ROW – Current LRTP is shown as a gray corridor.
2. The proposed arterial alignment with 136' ROW - We're showing 2 proposed layouts. Orange is likely the layout you're looking for but wanted to show the red layout as well since it avoids the easements.
3. Visible aerial imagery – Aerial Image has been updated. We've also increased the scale to hopefully understand the area better.
4. Floodplain location and limits – Floodplain limits adjacent to our site are shown.
5. Show how the proposed alignment ties back into the conceptual alignment to the north and south of the proposed alignment change - You can see in the exhibit how the orange and red proposed paths realign with the LRTP line (gray corridor).
6. Horizontal alignment information (tangent and curve data) for the arterial roadway, meeting a 45 MPH design. - Curve Radi and Tangent dimensions have been added to the exhibit.
 - a. Minimum horizontal curve radius of 1080'
 - b. 200' tangent lengths separating horizontal curves

Pat,

Following up from our meeting on 06/22 where we discussed the Wilco LRTP on the east side of our property. From that meeting we've proposed a possible path in red on the attached exhibit.

A couple constraints to consider when reviewing would be the existing median break on HWY 79 and the existing pipeline easements at the southeast corner of our site. The intent of the proposed path is to be mindful of those constraints and the existing homes on surrounding properties.

Hopefully, we can continue to build on this exhibit and find something that works for the county.

Best,

Johnnie Garza

Misti,

Thank you for taking my phone call. Attached is a markup showing the property we're developing in Taylor, TX, overlaid on the Williamson County LRTP Amended Mapbook.

Parcel Numbers: R006648, R006650

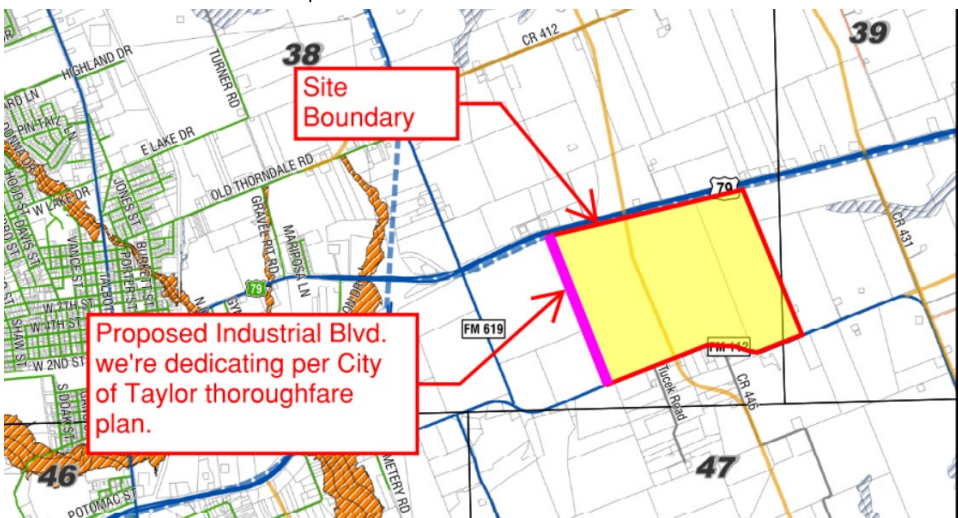

I have two questions:

1. Is the LRTP Amended Mapbook the current transportation planning document for Williamson County? I assume it is since it is an amendment, but I wanted to confirm. The City of Taylor GIS map does not appear to align with the amended mapbook, and I want to make sure we're coordinating with the correct planning documents before submitting to the City this Friday.
2. Is there any flexibility within the LRTP regarding roadway alignments? Since we're already proposing and dedicating a roadway along the west side of the property (pink line shown on the exhibit), we're hoping to understand whether there is any opportunity to align both thoroughfare plans.

Misti,

I've seen multiple LRTPs but I believe the latest is the Amended Mapbook, can you please confirm?

Per the City of Taylor's thoroughfare plan we're dedicated an Industrial Blvd on the west side of our site and it seems to roughly align with what I'm seeing in the Amended Mapbook. Ideally, we aligning Taylor and Wilco's thoroughfare plans.

I've attached a markup for context. Is there anyway you can provide any feedback on the alignment?

Pat/Adam,

Reaching out to discuss the Williamson County Long Range Transportation Plan. We're currently coordinating with the City of Taylor on the annexation of Parcel R006650 into the city limits and noticed the County's planned roadway alignment appears to run through a portion of the site.

We wanted to reach out and better understand the intent of the proposed alignment and discuss whether there may be any flexibility in the roadway location as planning efforts continue.

Would either of you have availability for a quick call sometime this week to discuss?

For reference, I've attached a snip of Parcel R006650 with the proposed County roadway shown in orange.

Best,

Johnnie Garza
